The Publication Committee consists of members of the Finance Committee (Luayne Weisgerber, Donna Hatfield and Julie Totten), the Department President, Carol Ulrich, and the Department Secretary-Treasurer, Jacki O'Neill. The Committee acts in an advisory capacity on publication policies and makes recommendations to the Department Executive Committee when publishing contracts are awarded and when an editor is selected. The editor of "The Star" is Lorene Bartos. The American Legion Auxiliary's "The Star" is published bimonthly. It includes information from department chairmen, department officers and unit members to keep members up-to-date on auxiliary happenings and upcoming events. Each senior American Legion Auxiliary member receives "The Star" as a benefit of membership. Approximately twenty cents of your dues goes toward the expense of each issue. If you are not receiving your copy, it may be one of the several issues the post office returns to Department Headquarters as undeliverable. Each returned copy of "The Star" is an added expense that can be avoided if members submit address changes immediately!

Every three years the Publication Committee takes bids for the printing contract of "The Star". The contract was recently re-awarded to Nebraska Printing Center.
